In response to the recent destruction of a gender-neutral bathroom sign in Eliot House, the Harvard College Office of BGLTQ Student Life affirms the importance of providing accessible resources to students of all genders and sexualities. We stand in solidarity with queer and transgender students in Eliot and across the College, whose right to be safe, supported, and included in their House community has been unfairly undermined by this incident of vandalism.

As an office committed to promoting the welfare of BGLTQ students at Harvard, we have been heartened by recent increases in gender-neutral bathrooms on campus; no student should be prevented from accessing resources on campus on the basis of their gender. It remains critical that each House provide its students with gender-neutral bathroom options. Acts that interfere with or prevent that access harm queer and transgender students on campus, and must not be tolerated.
